CHICAGO, July 26 .- A Senator who did not wear a uniform sat in a box at the South Side grounds today and cheered Justily every time James Manning's active young legislators from Washington cut up capers. He was as good as half a dozen professional coachers, but his stentorian tones and timely pleasantries did not give his favorites hits when they were needed. The value of this eloquent rooter was shown in the angry shouts which he provoked from the bleachers, such uncomplimentary remarks as "You're a traitor," and "When did you leave the West Side?" being hurled at him. The man with the powerful lungs who shouted for a forlorn hope was William E. Mason, Senator from Illinois, He had declared before the game that he would regard a victory for Mr. Manning as a good omen in his light to succeed himself.

It was a contest fraught with doubt until the last out was made. The final struggle of the Washingtons in the ninth inning looked dark for Griffith's men. With Cough in out, Clingman hit the ball. It sailed far over the right field while Jones sought to get under it. The sphere fell just beyond the pursuing fielder's reach, and Clingman cavorted to third base. It needed but one run to tie and the visitors danced about Clingman as if the score board man had already chalked sent Gear in to bat for Carrick, Gear was wound up to do almost anything, but the ball fell into McFarland's outstretched hands, after that worthy had made a long run for it. Clingman was caught at the plate on the throw in.

The White Steckings d'd not find the run-getting as easy as in the other games of the series. Hoy reached first at the start of the game, after Carried to the game. start of the game, after Carrick tried to dislocate his cloow. Jones batted an easy on the throw-in Jones journeyed to third.

A long single by Isbell brought Jones home. McFarland reached first because of Farrell's error. On the first ball sitch. grounder to Clingman, and Hoy was McFarland started for second, and Clarke sent the ball singing to second. Isbell started home, and was caught about ten feet from the rubber.

The first and only run for Washington was secured in the third inning, after Parrell hit safe and stole second. Dun-gan went out on a hy. Grady drove a long single into McFarland's territory, but the latter juggled with it, and was unable to get it home to keep Farrell from scor-ing. Waldron had gone out on a pop-up fly.

The score was made : to the control of the control be fielded in to stop him. Mertes of tributed a long hit in his turn, but he mained at first, Isbell knocking out.

JOHNSON SCENTS TROUBLE

Believes There Is a Traitor in the American League Camp.

The President Infimates That Mc-Graw Is Dickering With the Opposition - The Oriole Declares There Is Too Much One-Man Power

CHICAGO, July 26.-American League magnates charge that a man in their camp is dickering with John T. Brush or other National League magnates to betray them. They say that this man is John J. McGraw, and that he has been conducting negotiations with the National League representatives with the object of jumping to the National League at the close of the present season, and that an emissary of his has approached James Manning, of the Washington club, and George Stallings, manager of and a stockholder in the Detroit club.

The scheme, as outlined by American League magnates conversant with the situation, is this:
The National League is anxious this fall, when it reorganizes, to go back to twelve club basis. They count on Mc-Graw and the Baltimore club. They have figured on Washington, which is the cen-tral point in the negotiations, and will complete their circuit with Detroit and Indianapolis. President Johnson, of the American League, is fully conversant with the details of the scheme, and this with the details of the scheme, and this morning discussed it at length. He said:

"You may quote me as saying that I don't care how quick the Baltimore club takes its bag and baggage and goes over to the National League. We don't want any Benedict Arnolds in our camp. We know what has been going on and we are know what has been going on and we are prepared for any move."

The negotiations are said to have been carried on through a Baltimore newspaper man, who, it is asserted, has been acting as agent for McGraw, but he made a mistake when he approached Manning and Stallings, as they turned down the suggestions at once, being thoroughly loyal to the American League, and considered it in the nature of an insult to be even approached on the subject.

President Johnson said he understood a meeting was to have been held with Brush on July 12. Manning is here with the Washington club, and this morning admitted having been approached. Manning declares he is in the American League to stay, and that McGraw or anybody else cannot possibly win away his allegiance.

"I do not know whether you could exactly call it being approached," he said, "but the man who talked to me hinted around and I suppose I could have learned more if I had stopped to listen or asked questions, but I shut him off right quick. You know exactly where I stand."

of any move like the one under discussion."

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 25.—Manager McGraw, of Baltimore, was seen this afternoon with reference to the report given out by Ban Johnson that the Baltimore manager was engaged in an attempt to wreck the American League. "So the Julius Caesar" of the league calls me a Benedict Arnold, does he?" said McGraw. "I should like to know upon what evidence he bases that assertion. I have my good money invested to a pretty considerable extent and I am anxious that the league should meet with success.

"What has Johnson at stake? He is paid an annual salary to do our business and what right has he to make baseless and what right has he to make baseless assertions about his employers? I am frank to say that I believe there is too much one-man power in the league and that the affairs of our ortanization are being run in the interests of one particular clique.

"As to Stallings and Manning being approached, let Mr. Johnson give his proof. I can only say that Baitimore is in an excellent position to take care of its rights and proposes to do so. This business is too important for the dictation of one man."

man Sues the Company. earing was given before Justice the Peace Thomas H. Callan vesterday liceman Samuel Payne, colored, who is suing the Western Union Telegraph Company for $300 damages for failing to de liver a telegram which he sent from Norfolk, Va., to Lieutenant McCathran, the Fifth precinct, on the evening of July 12. As a result of the failure of the telegraph company to deliver the message he complainant alleges that he was adjudged guilty of being absent from duty without leave and was fined $4.83, as well as having his standing in the department seriously impaired.

From the evidence it appears that Payne was given leave of absence for five days, eginning July 7, and that he took advantage of the opportunity to take a trip o Norfolk. On the night of the 11th he and telegraphed his lieutenant stating the facts and requesting an extension of leave for one day. This message was received in the Washington office, but for some reason was never delivered, and Payne falled to report for duty Lieutenant McCathran sent to his house and failing to find any reasonable cause for his absence from duty reported the matter to Major Sylvester, who fined Payne two days' salary and reprimanded him. Lieutenant McCathran testified that had he received the telegram he would have attached to it a recommendation for the granting of the additional leave and forwarded it to Major Sylvester.

C. R. Wilson, as attorney for the Western Union Telegraph Company, stated that they had no excuse to offer for the failure to deliver the telegram and rested his case on the contention that no case had been made out. After the arguments Judge Callan gave notice that he would take the matter under advisement and that he would probably render his decision Monday. Edward G. Niles appeared as attorney for the complainant. Payne failed to report for duty Lieutenant be failed to do and a rule was issued against him requiring him to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt of court. It was on the answer of Lawler to this rule that the matter came up for hearing before Justice Bradley.

In his answer to the order of the court Lawler filed with his own another affidation to pay the amount of alimony required by the court. After considering the matter Justice Bradley decided that the grounds set forth in the affidavits were not sufficient warrant for him to interfere with the order passed by another justice of the Supreme Court of the District.

It is explained that on June 9, 1899, the complainant and Osborne entered into partnership in the conduct of the saloon and restaurant at the place above mentioned. Since the death of Osborne, in June last, it is stated, the business has been conducted by Hartnett. It is further stated that at the time of the death of Osborne the firm was indebted to various persons in the sum of about $12,000, of the firm about a reconciliation between Devine and his statement.
